Chrome gets major efficiency upgrade with new features

Here's how the company did: Loss per share: 48 cent loss vs. 52 cent loss per share expected, according to a Refinitiv survey of analysts Revenue (bookings): $899.4 million vs. $881.4 million expected, according to Refinitiv The revenue figure is what Roblox calls bookings, which include sales recognized during the quarter and deferred revenue. Bookings rose by 17% year over year.

Roblox reported $770.1 million in bookings in the year-ago quarter. The company generates revenue from sales of its virtual currency called Robux, which players use to dress up their avatars and buy other premium features in the games. Roblox reported 58.8 million average daily active users, up 19% from a year earlier.

Users spent more than 12.8 billion hours engaged in Roblox during the fourth quarter, up 18% year over year. The company reported a net loss of $289.9 million for the quarter, which ended Dec. 31. Roblox reported a net loss of $143.3 million for the same period in 2021. The company said average bookings per daily active user was $15.29, down 2% year over year. Roblox saw bookings swell more than 200% during the pandemic when kids were spending more time on their screens while they were stuck at home.

The stock was blazing hot in 2021, after Roblox's direct listing in March. Its market cap neared $80 billion before peaking in November 2021.
